WUCWO/UMOFc, as part of its activities, makes content available to users so that they may use them rationally and in the interests of their information needs for teaching, academic, scientific or other such purposes; users are not, however, entitled to use said content for commercial purposes; furthermore, usage does not imply any relations of a professional, mercantile or employment nature between the users and WUCWO/UMOFc, except where specifically provided for.

Access to our website is free of charge and no prior subscription or registration is required. However, for certain services users may be required to subscribe and to fill in the relevant forms. All such cases will be duly signalled as such, users being informed case by case of the procedure to follow for arranging the relevant registration. All matters pertaining to those special services and restricted access are subject to the internal regulations of WUCWO/UMOFc, which must be complied with by all users.

Users are to access our website in good faith, and in accordance with public-order provisions, with these general terms of use and, where applicable, with any specific terms of use stated. Users access our website under their own sole liability, and they shall be accountable in all cases for any loss or damage their usage may entail for third parties or for ourselves.

Users are expressly forbidden from using and obtaining the services and contents provided in this website through procedures other than those stipulated in these terms of use and, where applicable, the procedures set down in the special terms applying to the acquisition of certain services.

This website contains links and hyperlinks leading to other websites run by third parties not associated with our organisation. Accordingly, WUCWO/UMOFc cannot provide any guarantees regarding the contents or information provided in those websites, or as regards their being truthful and up-to-date, and WUCWO/UMOFc shall thus not be held responsible for any loss or WUCWO/UMOFC adds, however, that since the website draws on many unpaid contributions, this authorisation does not include reproducing, transforming or making use in general of the contents of this website in any other way, by whatever procedure, for commercial ends or for gain.

Apart from the authorisation for private use mentioned in the previous paragraph, or unless otherwise explicitly authorised, accessing the website does not imply that any other permission regarding its contents is granted, or the granting of any rights for transferring, licensing or assigning those contents, whether in full or in part.

WUCWO/UMOFC shall not be held responsible for this website being tampered with or manipulated by third parties.

Lastly, in the context of the dissemination of the contents provided by this website, third parties are expressly authorised to link to WUCWO/UMOFC's website, provided that they are not for commercial ends or for gain.
